Dear Senator Nunn:

Personal Communications Services (PCS) promises to change the way we communicate. It has the potential to provide flexibility, mobility and advanced data capabilities to everyone, every place in this country. According to industry experts, it also has the potential to be a substitute for 20-40% of wireline service.

It is important to me to be able to bring these services to my customers in rural America. The on-going viability of local exchange carriers is vitally important to our communities and our nation. We need full latitude to be a provider of services enabled by emerging technology. Competition is clearly in the future of telecommunications services. We believe the nation is best served by open entry and full competition, where all financially and technologically qualified players are eligible.

Sincerely,

Mary Lou Forsyth
